

Connect to the new Pitney Bowes Online Community

Pitney Bowes have just launched a website that provides GIS professionals with a great variety of original content to support their products, and further the dialogue on Location Intelligence. While it is still early days for the site you'll find resources like direct access to Pitney Bowes' product knowledge base, new content on how to use MapInfo Pro or upgrade to the latest version, but best of all their engineers, technical support team and product managers are regularly on the site sharing information or responding to your queries. CDR staff are also very active on the site and we hope our customers will get involved.

Please consider joining Li360. Over time we know this will become a 'go to' resource for you and your colleagues.

(August 2017)